It's Mass Production That's Winning the War!

● American methods have stepped up the production of ships, planes and tanks. Modern farming methods, too, have boosted food production. Sows can successfully farrow twice a year. The average litter can be substantially increased. Death losses can be reduced. That's mass production of pork. The sows are your machines. The food you feed them, the fuel. Naturally, to increase production, it is necessary to increase nutrition—more fuel for more energy . . . greater strength . . . increased resistance to disease. Hogs, like humans, have definite nutritional needs. And Pig-A-Meal is specifically designed to meet the needs of your sows and pigs.
